

TO ORDAIN 1ST FRANKFORT MINISTER

Torrential Rain Floods Fields And Highways

A torrential rainfall of almost cloudburst proportions swept all of this region Tuesday afternoon. The downpour was a record breaker and altho it did a lot of good, some damage to crops also resulted, oats being badly lodged and corn fields were flooded and corn covered with a deep layer of mud.

The Southwest Highway northeast of Orland Park was flooded and subways were filled stopping traffic. Many parts of southwest highway, 143rd street, Keane Avenue and 159th street were flooded so badly that cars were stalled and had to detour.

Every little ditch was a boiling stream. Cicero avenue near the state highway police station was flooded to a depth of over 6 inches.

Basements Flooded

Many basements in Orland, Tinley Park, and Mokena were flooded by the heavy downpour. In Tinley Park several inches of water covered the floor of the basement of the Methodist church.

Lightning Kills Cow

A cow on the Fred Knudson farm near Tinley Park was struck and killed by lightning while in the pasture about noon Tuesday. Another cow was killed by lightning on the same farm about two weeks ago. This bovine was near a fence when struck. The loss of both cows is covered by insurance.

FRANKFORT RNA CAMP SETS RECORD FOR WAR BOND PURCHASES

At the regular monthly meeting of Frankfort Camp No. 6036, Royal Neighbors of America, Mrs. Bertha Neiland, recorder read the following report on the recent Mothers' Day War Bond Campaign, purchased by the Frankfort Camp, $25.00; by members and their families, $12,000.00; the sale of $34,010. worth, for which the camp was responsible. Additional government bonds in the amount of $2,500,000 have been purchased by Royal Neighbors of America giving the society a total of $5,084,750 invested in United States government securities.

In view of the society's campaign to sell war bonds and stamps among its 5,846 camps and 500,600 members this latest investment was designated as "The Mother's Day Purchase of Government War Bonds". The amount of the purchase is considered a fitting tribute from the society to mothers of the nation for their sacrifices and contributions in the war. The campaign opened March 1 and closed on May 31.

Mrs. Edward Vollrath presided at the meeting, the business session of which was very brief. The social hour was spent playing pinocle with honors for scores going to Mrs. Nieland and Mrs. Melvin Fink. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Burnett Schram and Mrs. Herbert Minger. The next meeting will be held on August 5 with Mrs. Fred Kohlhaugen and Miss Lucille Topp acting as hostesses.

STATE HIGHWAY TRUCKS CAN ONLY DRIVE 300 MILES PER MONTH

Last Saturday Herman Schweser of Mokena, state highway maintenance man was notified by the officials of the state highway department that the government had requested that all state trucks be cut down to a total mileage of 300 miles per month in order to conserve in the use of gasoline. This means that a truck can only travel 10 miles a day and if work is done requiring excess mileage then the truck cannot go out again until enough time has elapsed for the next mileage installment to begin. No stone can be hauled for repairs and a lot of road work cannot be carried out.

MOKENA RED CROSS CHAPTER TO HOLD ELECTION OF OFFICERS JULY 13th

An election of officers and meeting of the Mokena Branch of the American Red Cross will be held in the Red Cross Work Room in the Sippel Store Building Tuesday evening, July 13, at 8:15 p.m. All who paid a dollar or more at the last roll call in 1942 or who contributed one dollar or more in the War Fund drive this year have a vote in the choosing of the officers. This is your Red Cross, therefore, you are cordially invited to be present, to hear the reports, and cast your vote for whomever the nominees may be.

Mokena Board Acts On Many Important Matters

The Mokena Village Board had a full budget of business at the meeting Tuesday night which ran from 8 o'clock until midnight.

The board first took up the dog license matter. The report showed that 51 dog licenses had been issued, but when a checkup on dog owners was made it was discovered that about only half of the dogs had been accounted for. A drive will be put on to collect the balance of the licenses or else have the license taxed on personal property with the assessor.

To Have Grass Cut

Walter McGovney has been engaged to cut the weeds and grass along the various streets in town and in the village park. Before this work is begun, all property owners who have thrown rubbish along the streets fronting on their properties will be required to remove same.

Water Users Delinquent

George Knudson, the new village treasurer was present and checked over the list of village water users and it was found that many were delinquent. Notices have been issued to these water users to pay up and if they do not respond within a certain time their water supply will be shut off. Quite a number of water meters were also reported out of order.

Water Pump Re-hired

The matter of hiring a water pump proved prolonged discussion. Alderman Carl Wolters maintained the job should be left out on bids, but the other board members insisted that Martin Mueller the present water pump operator be re-hired at his prevailing salary and when the matter was put to a vote five aldermen voted yes for this proposition while Alderman Wolters voted nay.

Treasurer's Bonds Approved

The bond of George Knudson the new village treasurer in the sum of $5,000 was approved.

To Repair Streets

The board decided to patch up the holes in the village streets with whatever material will be found available. The cost of the improvements will be paid for by the state gas tax due the village. Work is to start soon.

Phone Ordered Out of Hall

At the request of the local OGD that a telephone should be installed in the village hall for use in blackouts and emergency calls, a telephone was installed last winter in the village hall. The board felt that the phone is not being used but once a month if then, and that the expense was unnecessary and voted to have the phone taken out.

Facing Drainage Suits

The village board is facing two possible drainage suits. The Commissioners of the recently created drainage district to the north of the village consisting of Henry Yunker, Fred Knudson and Lawrence Kohl, told the board that inasmuch as water from Mokena empties into the drainage ditch, they expected the village to pay in at least $1,000 as their share of the costs of the drainage ditch which was dug at a cost of about $14,000. The board was given until next meeting to decide what they are going to do and if nothing is done by that time the drainage district will bring suit to force the village to pay for benefits accruing to them by the use of the drainage ditch.

By having this information handy it will save much time in making out the applications.

New Lenox Fire Dept. Called Out When Auto Catches Fire

The New Lenox Fire Dept. was called to the home of Edw. Gordon on the Francis Road north of New Lenox at three o'clock Sunday morning to extinguish a fire. The Gordon's had their Crevrolet sedan parked in their yard and one of the members of the family was awakened by a very bright light and when they sought the reason, they found their car in a mass of flames. When the fire department arrived they were unable to save the car, but did extinguish the blaze. The car was a complete wreck. It is thought that a wire connected to the battery had become defective which finally caused the blaze.

This all without charge.

Each woman will do her own canning, but will have the added advantage of having Mrs. Rose and other women assist them. The government is furnishing several cookers some of 30 quart capacity. The government is asking any woman in the community owing a pressure cooker, to bring it to the Center to be used for which they will be paid $5.00 rental. CONFUSION

The OPA was recently successful in having railroad freight rates reduced, and it was thereby able to announce a "roll back" in coal prices of five cents a ton, a saving of possibly 50 cents a year for the average family.

Now a wage increase of eight cents an hour, which amounts to over $200,000,000 a year for 1,100,000 non-operating railroad employees, is being considered, and coal miners are to receive a pay increase which will add more millions to cost of producing coal.

No matter how meritorious these increases are, they add to the cost of production, while the government is trying to "roll back" prices and "hold the line."

It is impossible to "roll back" retail prices while the cost of production rolls merrily upward. Subsidy proposals to offset the difference between production costs and "rolled back" retail prices would make the people pay thru the nose in taxes.

The ax of confusion has fallen on the local merchant and farmer, and thousands of them have gone out of business, to the detriment of the consumer. Admitting that the present situation is complicated, is it

Tinley Shoemaker Retires After Running Shop 50 Years

The residents of Tinley Park very deeply regretted to see one of their oldest business men leave the community last Saturday. Geo. Schreiber who has been conducting a shoemaker shop in Tinley Park for nearly half a century left the weekend to make his home with his son Louis who recently purchased a farm at Bloomingdale, Mich.

Mr. Schreiber first located in Pennsylvania after arriving in this country from Germany in the eighties. After a brief stay there he came to what was known as Goeselyville north of Tinley Park and carried the mail to and from Tinley Park several times a week.

About fifty years ago Mr. Schreiber purchased the brick building he has resided in. He also purchased a little building which was one of the first business places in Tinley Park and moved it along side of his residence and opened a shoe store and shoe repair shop in same and used this structure until a number of years ago when he erected a modern up-to-date brick building which is now occupied by Dr. Clayton Enoch and Teresa's Beauty Shop.

Mr. Schreiber is the oldest business man in the Tinley Park Business Men's Association. He has been very active all his life and has been prominently identified with the business and civic affairs of his community serving on the village board and as director of the Bremen State Bank.

Mr. Schreiber had a very genial disposition which endeared him to a great circle of friends. His wife died a number of years ago and he has lived alone since then. Advancing years are exacting their toll and his health has not been as good as formerly and he felt that it would be better if he retired from all activities, and thus decided to go with his son.

Mr. Schreiber's great circle of friends hope the much needed and desired rest will benefit him greatly and that he will again return to Tinley Park.

Mr. Schreiber is a great lover of flowers and used to have prize winning flower gardens and he delighted in sharing his exquisite blooms with the sick and those who loved flowers but did not have any of their own.

You may be assured that the pictures used on this program will be of the best, and that the selections will be such that the variety will be interesting.

HOODLUMS THROW POP BOTTLE THRU TRAIN WINDOW

Mokena passengers on the Rock Island suburban train due in Mokena at 6:09 were very much surprised Wednesday evening when a pop bottle came crashing thru a car window as the train was nearing Blue Island. A shower of glass fell on a number of women passengers but luckily no one was hurt. A group of colored boys are said to have hurled the pop bottle.

A few months ago negro boys at Morgan Park threw stones thru car windows injuring passengers. Police finally caught up with a group of colored hoodlums and shot and killed one of them and since then no more stone throwing has been reported from that district.

Police at Blue Island were notified of the pop bottle throwing incident.

not becoming more complicated by trying to freeze retail prices while allowing production costs to constantly climb?"

Robert Klepper First Frankfort Man To Enter Ministry

For the first time in the history of Frankfort one of its young men has entered the ministry and is to be ordained as a minister of the Gospel in the home town church.

This coming Sunday special ordination services will be held in the St. Peter's Evangelical and Reformed Church for Robert Klepper, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Klepper of Frankfort, which without a doubt will be a very sacred and proud moment for both the parents and the youthful pastor. It is a rather outstanding event when a young man in a small community enters into the ministry and receives the rites of ordination in his home town church.

Rev. Mr. Klepper was born in Frankfort and after graduating from the Frankfort public school he attended the Joliet Township High school and Junior College and after graduating from these institutions of learning he attended the Evangelical College at Elmhurst, Illinois for two years, following which he took a three year course in the Union Theological Seminary in New York City and concluded his studies with a post graduate course in the Princeton Seminary, at Princeton, N. J., and was given a B. D. degree.

Mrs. Klepper also had a four year course at Elmhurst and a 3 year course in the Union Theological Seminary in New York City.

Rev. Klepper has been assigned to a charge at Long Grove, Ill. and will also carry on mission work at Mount Prospect, Ill.

The organ prelude, Mrs. E. Bizer organist; The Call to Worship; the Doxology; the Invocation and Lord's Prayer; Hymn No. 281 "A Mighty Fortress is Our God"; the Litany for the Church; the Apostles Creed, the Gloria Patri, the Scriptures, 11 Timothy 2; Hymn "The Church's One Foundation"; the Sermon, Dr. Paul Lehman, Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass.; The Anthem by Choir of St. Peter's Church.

Immediately following the service an informal reception will be held in the church parlors. Neighbors and friends and members of the church are invited to participate in this fellowship and to meet Rev. Mr. Klepper personally.

St. Peter's is happy that one of her members has gone forth into the Christian ministry and this church, Sunday School, Women's Guild, Martha Sewing Circle and the Youth Fellowship join in presenting Rev. Mr. Klepper a gift for the purchase of a pulpit gown.

MORE PLANES TO CHINA

It can now be revealed that the bottleneck has been broken in transportation to China, and greater quantities of equipment for air operations against the Japanese are being moved.

This is an encouraging development following the successful Chinese operations against the Japs in the Ichang area within recent weeks. Incidentally, these operations have been somewhat exaggerated by the Chinese. It now appears that the Japs did not intend to move against Chungking, nor did they have quite the number of men earlier reported.

The outstanding point, however, is that the Chinese were successful largely as a result of air power. This was a tribute not only to Chenault and the American pilots, but also to a contingent of Chinese pilots flying with the Chennault group.

Until recently it was not desirable to increase the number of planes in China, because the limited supply facilities by air from India constituted a bottleneck. There was no need of having more planes if they could not be supplied with fuel and bombs for operation. Now, however, a greater number of transport planes has been provided for this service and it has become feasible to increase the number of combat planes at the end of the line in China.

PLANES TO RUSSIA

About a year ago, Russian Red army men in Washington almost got down on their knees begging for air-planes. U. S. planes were much scarcer then than today. Production was low and there were also heavy demands from Egypt and MacArthur.

At one time, the Russians actually suggested that the best way to parcel out lend-lease equipment would be to adopt a very simple standard, namely, which army was killing the most Germans.

Gradually, however, planes were sent to Russia, until today they are going in tremendous quantities. This is one reason why the Nazis have lacked heavy superiority in the air, which previously they had.

In fact, the Russians now have shifted their pleas away from air-planes and concentrated them on food. With the breadbasket of Russia in German hands, large sections of the population are starving.

ARMY DOCTORS TRYIED

Next time the army tries to recruit doctors in peacetime, a lot of medicos who patriotically became reserve officers long before Pearl Harbor are going to think twice before they do so again.

Reason is that the doctors who became reserve officers well in advance of war have now been penalized. They are stymied on promotions. Meanwhile, doctors who have come into the army recently have shot way ahead of them in rank.

What happened was that after a lot of reserve corps doctors had been brought into the army, still more doctors were needed. So the medical corps upped its bids. It offered higher commissions as majors and lieutenant colonels.

Meanwhile, when lower ranking former reserve officers raise the question of promotions, the stock reply is: "The tables of organization do not permit it."

MERRY-GO-ROUND

¶ The OPA or the army-navy might well do something for army-navy wives who have to pay terrific seasonal rents at Atlantic coast establishments.

¶ Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, crack strategist of the U. S. general staff, who had opposed some of Churchill's strategy ideas, has suddenly been transferred from War Plans to North Africa.

¶ Harry Hopkins knew very little about the creation of Justice Byrnes' new War Mobilization office before it was created—though he is a member. Some politicians interpret this as meaning that Harry is slipping in his close personal friendship with FDR—but he isn't.

¶ Shenango Depot, Pa., has a stockade where about 2,000 soldiers are detained as prisoners, but thousands of other I-A men are sent there for transfer to other areas. It is a transfer center, and the fact that a man is sent there does not mean he is going to a dumping-ground.

Northern Troops Fight Cold and Axis

Soldiers who are stationed on our far northern fronts have to fight the cold as well as the Axis. The man being carried to the jeep was wounded and is suffering from frozen feet. The scene is the Aleutian island of Attu during the invasion of Japanese positions. Note the American flag flying from an improvised stand on the combat car.

Troops End Detroit Race Riots

Thirty-one persons were killed and 700 were injured during race rioting in Detroit culminated only by the presence of army troops. These soldiers are shown marching through the trouble zone. Detroit war plant schedules were seriously disrupted and industrial leaders feared that deliveries of planes, tanks, guns, and other war materials would be drastically reduced because of absenteeism. Arrests during the riots totalled 1,300 persons. The entire Detroit police department was engaged in questioning them to fix responsibility for crimes. Representative Martin Dies, chairman of the committee on un-American activities, announced a congressional inquiry of the rioting.

Chinese Harass Japs on Salween Front

A three-pronged Japanese drive aimed at the heart of China's interior was stymied by valiant Chinese soldiers who, although they were outnumbered, fought the invader to a standstill and forced him to retreat. Much of the action raged along the Salween river where the Chinese troops continue to harass the Japanese force which originally numbered 50,000.

GOD CALLS A LEADER

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 3:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Come now therefore, and I will send thee unto Pharaoh, that thou mayest bring forth my people the children of Israel out of Egypt.—Exodus 3:10.

God calls men, commissions, and uses them to carry out His plans and purposes in the earth. What a great truth that is, and how it glorifies the destiny of man to know that it is divinely appointed.

As Joseph Parker effectively points out, the experience of Moses in Midian was a direct dealing with God, whereas we who may not be able to "see the fountain" must "be content to drink at the stream," but should always remember that the stream flows from that same fountain.

"Every man should put to himself the questions. What is my destiny? What does God mean me to be and to do in the world? . . . It is a most pitiable thing that a man should read of Moses being divinely called . . . to a special work" and fail to realize "that God has a special work for every man to do." Let us be careful that we do not "so pervert and misinterpret circumstances as to press them into a justification of self-will," rather than recognize them as "destiny which is beckoning us to duty."

For our instruction and guidance we consider, then, the story of the call of this outstanding leader of Israel. It presents him as a true servant of God, one who was—

I. Personally Equipped.

While it is a blessed truth that God will use any man who surrenders himself to His control and guidance, no matter how limited that man's ability and training may be, it is also true that, other things being equal, the man with the best equipment will be the most useful servant.

God gave Moses a unique preparation. He was first of all a Hebrew, born among the people that he was to lead. He knew the luxury and all the cultural advantages of the Egyptian court (Acts 7:22), with the safeguard of training by his own mother as his nurse.

He observed at first hand the oppression of his people, and made a self-willed and impulsive effort to deal with the problem. The result was that he had a "postgraduate" course of instruction and discipline in the wilderness, where he spent forty years in the school of experience.

We have learned anew from our war experience that training for service is essential. If that is true in military matters and in secular life, it is doubly true in the service of Christ. He does graciously use even the humble and untrained worker, but no one who has a vision of service will be content to remain unprepared.

II. Spiritually Qualified.

Moses was a man who knew God. Had he been a worldly man he would only have been curious regarding the phenomenon of the burning bush. But note how alert and reverent he was and how immediately responsive to the instructions and the call of God.

Here God's future leader was made conscious of the infinite majesty and holiness of God, the need of reverence and godly fear, the purpose of the Eternal One to deliver His people, and the assurance that He would be with His servant. Such a spiritual experience made effective the excellent preparation which he already had for service.

All the training and preparation in the world is worse than useless in God's service apart from that spiritual qualification that comes from true regeneration and dedication to Him.

There is no more pathetic sight than a spiritually powerless church worker going through the motions of service for Christ. If we are in that condition we may be sure that we deceive no one but ourselves.

III. Divinely Called.

Moses was called (v. 4), commissioned (vv. 6-10), and clad with divine authority (vv. 11, 12) for his great task.

God calls His servants to different responsibilities and in different ways, but the important thing is that we should know that we are in His will and that we are answering His call.

No one has any right to choose full-time Christian service simply as a desirable vocation. In any calling of life man needs God's guidance in order to make a proper choice, but in the ministry or missionary service it is an absolute essential.

If we were more careful to seek His will for every individual there would be less unhappiness in the world. But in the case of the one who goes out to speak for God there is not only the danger of distress, but of real disaster for himself and those to whom he tries to minister.

Prepared, qualified, and called, Moses is now ready to meet God before he goes on to his life of holy exploits for Him.

Modern Uses for Quaint Patchwork

THERE is endless fascination in old-fashioned quilt blocks, and there are many modern ways to use them. They make marvelous table mats that really protect the finish of the table, and are being used for luncheon mats as well as for occasional tables. Pieced and quilted sets protect the backs and arms of upholstered chairs and keep your new slip covers clean.

The block shown here is easy to piece. It should be lined with muslin and interlined with one layer of cotton sheet wadding. These three layers should be quilted together either with diamond quilting or with running stitches following the lines of the pieced pattern. Edges are bound with harmonizing bias tape.

NOTE: Quilt blocks also may be made into unusual borders for curtains and luncheon cloths. There are complete directions for pieced border designs in BOOKS 5 and 6 of the series offered with these articles. BOOK 6 also shows an old star design pieced to make pot holders. Cordell Hull, Always
The Perfect Diplomat

Col. Harold B. Hinton, now with the U. S. army headquarters in London, has written a life of Cordell Hull, United States secretary of state, which is being published in England. He tells the following:

Hull has always been famous for his reluctance to commit himself—and even at the beginning of his political career disliked making a definite statement about anything. However, one self-confident man bet that he could get a direct answer from the cautious statesman. "What is the time, Mr. Hull?" he asked.

Hull took out his watch, looked at it, and then said: "What does your watch say?"

The first privately owned turnpike toll company to be organized in this country was the Philadelphia and Lancaster Turnpike Co., incorporated in 1792. New York was the first state to charge an automobile registration fee to pay highway costs and in 1901 collected $954 in such fees.

In 1843 an English woman obtained a patent for a pavement material consisting, among other things, of "oil rubber."

Eleven per cent of the tires of the 25,400 passenger cars on New Jersey farms were found to be "bald" in a check made by Rutgers University.

MY FRIEND FLICKA

by MARY O'HARA

THE STORY SO FAR: Ten-year-old Ken McLaughlin can ride any horse on his family's Wyoming ranch, but he wants a colt of his own. His father, a retired army officer, refuses because Ken has not been promoted at school and has shown no sense of responsibility. But Ken's mother convinces Captain McLaughlin that the colt may be just what Ken needs. Ken picks the yearling filly of a "loco" mare named Rocket. Loco is the horse breeder's name for a no-good, untamable horse. Captain McLaughlin, a good judge of horses, is angry at Ken's decision, but Ken's mind is made up. His father promises to help him bring the filly in from the pasture. Now continue with the story.

CHAPTER VIII

Rob had his work cut out for him next day. Banner and the mares had been driven out soon after Sargent left. Rocket, uneasy and restless in spite of a good measure of oats poured into a feed box and set on the ground, was kept alone in one of the corrals.

"The noose?" said Nell at breakfast, pouring cream in her coffee. "Are you going to bother to take that off before you load her?"

Rob looked outraged. "Do you think I would deliver her with that old string around her neck?"

Howard and Ken looked at each other. That meant getting Rocket in the chute. Rocket was to be got into the chute, then she was to be got into the truck!

"Who'll drive the truck?" asked Nell.

"I'll drive it myself. I'll take Gus along—might need him."

Breakfast was eaten quickly. McLaughlin hurried up to the corrals. Gus was told to fill the truck with gas and oil and get it ready for the trip. Tim was to help in the chute.

They moved Rocket through the corrals without much trouble, but when she was once more in the small coop which led to the chute, and the heavy gate closed behind her, she began to snort and rear.

The narrow passage into the chute was open before her, but even though they urged her, and yelled at her, and flapped blankets and quilts over the fence on her back, she was too wise to go in. She could see through, and at the far end, a heavy door blocked escape.

"It's that door," said McLaughlin. "She sees that there's no way out through the chute. We'll have to open that door, and let her see daylight through. Then perhaps if I rush her from here, I can drive her through. Ken, you get up there on top of the chute wall, close by the door. Open the door. If she rushes in, you slam the door shut. It's going to take quick thinking and quick action. You can lean down and handle the door from the top—it's not easy—mind you don't fall down into the chute. The door swings from inside out—if you get it three-quarters shut and she crashes against it, she'll shut it the rest of the way herself."

Ken climbed up on the wall of the chute, unsteady with excitement. McLaughlin, blanket on arm, climbed a few bars of the fence of the coop.

"Ready, Ken? Open the door."

Ken leaned over and hauled the door open, and at the same moment Rob gave a yell and flapped the blanket on Rocket's haunches. Rocket saw the daylight at the far end of the chute and plunged through. Ken closed the door again—just in time—the mare crashed against it.

She was right under him, and as he pulled back, she reared and her great head and wild eyes were in his face.

"Pole, Tim!" shouted McLaughlin, and Tim, standing ready, thrust through both walls of the chute a heavy pole to cut off her backward escape. It was at the height of the mare's haunches, too high for her to get her feet over, and not so high that she could back under it.

When she came down on all four feet again, and felt the pole behind her, she began to fight.

McLaughlin climbed the wall of the chute, opposite Ken, and struggled to get hold of the frantic creature's head.

Suddenly Rocket dropped to the earth and stood quiet a moment, her sides heaving with breaths that were almost groans; and McLaughlin reached his hand down, clipped the rope, and it fell free. But at that instant the mare reared sharply again, McLaughlin could not draw back quickly enough, and the top of her head struck him in the face.

Ken saw the blood spurt from his father's eye as Rocket's foam-flecked head described a complete backward arc, and she crashed to the ground, breaking the pole behind her.

For a moment McLaughlin clung to the wall, swearing, one hand to his face, while the mare fought madly below him, her feet thundering on the walls, her great body flinging itself from one side to the other.

McLaughlin got down and put his bandana to his bleeding face. One eye was swelling rapidly. "That's that," he said, going around into the corrals.

Rocket, screaming and grunting, was struggling desperately to right herself. She had fallen so far backward that her head and neck were almost in the coop. This gave her forelegs more freedom, and by vigorous writhings and twistings, pushing and kicking with her legs, she forced herself out of the chute and into the coop, and immediately scrambled to her feet.

"We're all set now, Gus," said McLaughlin. "Bring the truck in there, back it up against the far end of the chute. Tim, you get the runway and set it in the chute. We'll drive her right through the chute, up the runway and into the truck."

"Better fix dot eye, Boss," said Gus, looking at Rob's face, "und de cheek—dot's bad cut—split wide open. Let Missus fix up for you."

Rob held the handkerchief over his eye. He looked down at himself. He was spattered with foam and blood. He frowned.

"Yes, I'll go down and clean up. Gus, I don't want any more trouble with that mare. You never can tell what she'll do. Once she's in the truck, we're pretty safe, but to get her there is the trick. Better saddle Shorty. I'll ride him through the chute and up the runway, and there's a chance she might follow him into the truck."

While Tim and Gus maneuvered the truck until its back was flush against the door of the chute, Rob went down for first aid.

"I think it really needs stitches, Rob," said Nell, examining it closely, having washed her hands in hot water and soap, and laid out all her first-aid kit on the kitchen table.

GOOSE BAR RANCH

And she reared to meet it—

"It's on the cheek bone, below the eye, really a wide cut."

"Deep?" asked Rob.

"Not so very deep."

"Fix it with tape then."

Nell held the lips of the wound closed until the bleeding had nearly stopped, then made little bridges of narrow adhesive tape across, and finally a dressing over all.

Then she put both arms around his neck and laid her cheek against his, holding him closely. He felt a slight tremor through all her body.

"Don't worry, honey," he said. "It's nothing." He patted her on the shoulder—suddenly his arms held her hard and he kissed her, then he went upstairs to change into spotless whipcord riding breeches, polished boots, and tailored jacket.

Back up at the corral again, the loading was accomplished with comparative ease. Shorty was ridden up the incline into the truck, Rocket followed. Shorty was ridden down again, and before Rocket could follow, the back of the truck was closed and escape was shut off. She was neatly enclosed in the six-foot walls of the truck, made of sturdy two-by-fours bolted together. She reared, she clawed at the rails, she neighed wildly, she plunged and leaped until again and again her feet slid out from under her and she crashed to the floor, then scrambled up to begin all over. But there was nothing she could do. No one paid any attention to her any more. Rob picked the old piece of lariat triumphantly out of the chute, and draped it around his own neck. He and Gus got into the box of the truck, and the boys begged to ride along as far as the turn onto the highway.

They passed the house, the boys hanging on the steps of the truck, shouting good-by to Nell, who came out to wave to them.

But Rocket's story was not yet ended. Where the ranch road turned off from the Lincoln Highway, was the sign of the ranch. Every rancher is proud of his ranch sign, under which all visiting cars must pass, and exercises great ingenuity in thinking up something striking and effective.

McLaughlin's sign was a high square arch. On the broad horizontal board which was the span of it, he had painted GOOSE BAR RANCH, in red letters against a blue ground. To each side were reproductions of his brands.

As they reached the sign, Rock-et's wild eyes were upon it—this strange bar, bearing down upon her from the skies—and she reared to meet it.

Standing astraddle on her hind legs, her head up, the sign caught her a blow on the top of the brow. There was a great crash in the truck; McLaughlin glanced back anxiously; he pulled up, and they got out and climbed up over the sides; but Rocket lay motionless. Rob got into the truck, against Gus' anxious warnings, but there was no danger, for Rocket never moved again.

The rest of the day was spent rounding up horses of all ages, descendants of the Albino.

At first no one had believed that McLaughlin really meant what he said—that every single one of the Albino's blood, no matter how beautiful, how fast, or how promising, was to be sold. But as the hours went on, and one after the other was gathered into the corrals, and still they went out on horseback to gather more, with Nell busy with the stud book and names, it became apparent that he was in earnest.

Ken and Howard were kept at the gates, opening and shutting them as the different bands were brought through, taken down to the corrals, the one bronc picked out and held, the others sent out again. Gus and Tim and Ross were all riding.

"And that's every last one of them," said Nell at length, closing the book. Her voice was regretful.

She and Williams were in the stable, looking out into the corrals, over the top of the Dutch door. The two boys were perched safely on the corral fence, Rob and the men in the corral with the milling broncs.

"Except Flicka," murmured Ken, and he looked across the corral at his mother and caught her eye. She was looking at him too, thinking, he knew, the same thing. He had not been exactly worried about Flicka. After all, she was his own, his father had given her to him, she couldn't be sold without his consent.

McLaughlin walked over to Ken, called him down from the fence, and walked away with him.

"Ken," he said quietly, "I'm going to give you a chance to do a sensible, manly thing. I want you to choose another colt, and let me sell Flicka to Williams with the rest of this hell's brew."

A wave of heat rushed all over Ken's body. He looked down, dug with his toe in the gravel of the path, and shook his head.

McLaughlin was quiet and persuasive. "You've seen for yourself—what can you expect? It's for your own sake I'm asking, as well as to save myself the trouble and unpleasantness of trying to help you do something which is impossible. What's the use of having another Rocket on your hands? You've seen what end she came to—and no one could have tried harder with a horse than I tried with her—"

"But I'm going to tame Flicka," whispered Ken. "Sometimes bad horses get tamed."

McLaughlin's voice rose angrily.

"Look up!"

Ken looked up and was more frightened than ever. His father's face looked appalling. It was swollen out of all shape, one eye was closed by purple and black lumps above and below, and the white dressing on the cheekbone was surrounded by an inflamed, angry circle.

"Are you going to be a bull-headed little simp or a sensible boy?"

Ken said stubbornly, "Dad, I have to have her—she's mine."

He really meant, "she's me." It felt as if his father were asking him to be torn apart.

On Sunday the family went to church in Cheyenne. There was the usual argument before going. Rob, who wanted to spend the morning sitting on the terrace reading the funny papers, said he thought they ought not to go because some officers might come out from the Post. "There's always a chance, you know, that someone might buy a pony."

"Not Sunday morning," said Nell firmly. And then she added with the one deep dimple in her right cheek showing, "But you don't have to go, dear, your face isn't healed up yet. That's a good excuse. I'll go and take the boys."

McLaughlin said, "Right-o." Fifteen minutes later, when Nell was ready to go and Howard and Ken were dressed in their long gray flannel trousers and white shirts and small round white linen hats with narrow brims, he came running upstairs and roared indignantly, "Do you think I'll let you go to town and sit in that pew without me by your side?"

As they waited for him to dress, the boys fidgeting, Nell explained to them that Army Officers are trained to be very particular how they look for the sake of their prestige, so they must all wait patiently.

At last McLaughlin came down looking clean and handsome in his light gray flannel suit, with a soft felt hat tilted at just the right angle on his black hair and nothing but a small piece of adhesive on his cheek bone.

Nell was in a dark green print, with turban and high-heeled pumps. Tim had washed the car, and the maroon paint and shining nickel was as bright as anything they passed on the Lincoln Highway.

Blood Tests of Hogs To Stem Abortions

Healthy Looking Swine Can Carry Disease

"Typhoid Mary," who a few decades ago unwittingly spread typhoid fever although not appearing to be ill from the disease herself, has a present-day counterpart in swine which perpetuate infectious or contagious abortion by farrowing apparently healthy litters that may spread the disease.

More than 2,300 blood samples from approximately 32 herds in different parts of the state were tested last year by the department of animal pathology and hygiene at the University of Illinois college of agriculture. About 10 per cent proved to be reactors.

Invariably introduced into healthy herds through the purchase of apparently healthy gilts, sows or boars, the contagious type of abortion can be definitely diagnosed by blood testing all breeding animals in the herd. Results of the test and approved methods of management will enable owners to prevent and control the disease intelligently.

A testing and management program has been outlined by the extension service of the college of agriculture to guide purebred swine breeders in preventing and controlling this malady.

Two negative blood tests of all breeding stock in the herd at intervals of six months entitle owners of clean herds to accreditation certificates issued by the state department of agriculture. The disease control plan involves the co-operation of the local veterinarian.

Although no charge is made for testing blood samples, owners pay for collecting them. Sterile vials for collecting blood samples are supplied by the laboratory.

All reactors to the test should be fattened for market, but if they are not marketed, they should be isolated at the time of farrowing. Such isolation is only a temporary expedient, since the ultimate aim of herd owners is to eliminate all infected animals. Normal litters from infected sows may be placed in quarantine and raised free from disease. After reacting animals have been marketed, the premises should be cleaned and disinfected.

Agriculture in Industry

By FLORENCE C. WEED

Ramie Fiber

As soon as someone invents a practical machine to tear out ramie fiber ready for spinning, this country will have a new industry. Ramie can be grown especially well in the Gulf states and large yields have been obtained in Louisiana and Florida.

The plant has been grown in China for 3,000 years and was used extensively for cloth before cotton was introduced. In China it is cut, crushed and cleaned by hand, and one man's work only produces from two to six pounds of fiber in a day. To be practical here, the industry would have to be completely mechanized.

Ramie was first brought to the United States about 1855. Experiments in growing this plant have been conducted by private individuals, state agricultural experiment stations and the United States department of agriculture in many states. The most extensive plantings of 40 to 50 acres have been carried on by men who were developing decorticating machines.

There are several plants spinning ramie in this country, and the domestic fiber will find a ready market as soon as machines are developed to extricate the fiber. It has great strength when wet and will not mildew. The fiber is particularly attractive and is so soft and lustrous that as much as 20 per cent ramie may be mixed with silk without changing the appearance.

Cutting Pulpwood

In cutting pulpwood, farmers should know what types of trees to take out. It is also important to know how to cut the timber stand properly. The key to a productive forest is to maintain a good growing stock. A good stand of trees should be left.

All trees which are to be taken out should be carefully marked, and especially so where the job of harvesting is to be turned over to others.

SERVICEMEN'S NEWS

June 12, 1943

To the Citizens of Tinley Park: I cannot tell you how surprised and delighted I was to receive the town paper and the kit, containing the articles for one's personal care. It is indeed most welcome.

Not having been a citizen for a good many years, feel most honored in being remembered. I shall never forget your kindness. By this time I am well on my way in routine Army life, and find it very interesting. It certainly is a healthy one as we are out of doors a great deal, and walk miles daily I'm sure, and from the many buildings of this tremendous camp. Have been through a stiff and hurried basic training course at Camp Robinson, Ark. and sent here for desert training course, preparatory to being sent overseas, when or where of course we do not know.

Again thanking you for your most thoughtful remembrance of me, and with best wishes to each and everyone in my home town of Tinley Park.

Most sincerely,
Irene Hartmann, Los Angeles, Calif.

Dear Folks: It's been some time since I've written. Had good intentions of writing sooner, but my good intentions don't always have such hot results.

I want to thank you for the Easter box. It was fine of you to send it. I enjoyed it a lot, or rather the rest of the guys and myself enjoyed it a lot. The division is getting generous. They're giving out furloughs again and if all goes well I expect to be home for a few days sometime soon. No whistles to jump to, no lights off at 9:30 pm. sleep as late as you want in the morning, and Mom's home made cooked meals to look forward to, what could be sweeter.

I won't go into detail explaining about Indiantown Gap. By now I believe you all know what Army camps are like and the gap is the same as the rest. I will say though, it's the best camp we've hit to date. We're near many large cities and when weekend passes are handed out, we all head toward Reading, Altoona, Lebanon, Pittsburgh or New York City. Thanks again for your gift.

Hope to see you soon
Sincerely,

Dear Folks: I guess I owe you a letter from way back. I had a very big surprise several days ago. The Easter package you mailed to Salina, Kansas arrived here and in very good condition considering the traveling it did. It was certainly welcome and we thank you a lot. There's not a great deal I can say about the raids we make. The papers give good accounts so just look for Flying Fortresses and that'll be us. It's not the most pleasant job in this war, but it sure isn't dull. Those Jerries are out for blood and it's our neck or theirs usually theirs too. The Times is ar-

Word comes from Scott Field, Illinois that Pfc. Fred J. Ricketts of Orland Park is receiving an intensive course in radio operating and mechanics at this Army Air Force Technical Training Command Post, to fit him for duty as a member of a fighting bomber crew.

During his training period here, Pfc. Ricketts will be tested by experts as to aptitudes for special types of work, and when his course is finished he will be sent to more advanced training centers which are part of the vast network of Technical Training Command schools. Upon graduation he will be well qualified for duty as an expert radio operator or technician wherever his services are required by the Army Air Forces.

Scott Field is located six miles from Belleville, Illinois in the "Looking Glass Country" immortalized by Charles Dickens. Formerly a training ground for aviators in World War I, it is now devoted exclusively to the production of radio operators and mechanics.

Erwin Kelley, principal of the Orland Park schools has been spending the week at Champaign.

Rev. and Mrs. H. L. Brett who have served the Orland Park Methodist church for the past three years, moved Thursday to their new charge at Hazelcrest. Markham is also included in the pastorate. The two congregations have about 300 membership. The residents are all of the suburban type. A raise in salary also goes with the new charge. All in all the new pastorate is a decided advancement for Rev. Mr. Brett.

Rev. Mr. Rempel the new pastor, preached his first sermon last Sunday. He was located in Joliet at the Ottawa street Methodist church a number of years ago.

The annual 4th of July picnic of St. Michael's parish was held in the forest preserve on 143rd street on Sunday afternoon and evening. A good sized crowd attended.

Postmaster Toelle who has been in poor health for quite sometime, is slowly improving, but is not able to be back at the postoffice yet.

Owen Jungles, son of Mrs. Mary Yunker joined the navy and left for duty July 3rd.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR HOLZ

MOKENA

Here is a very interesting letter from North Africa:

North Africa, June 12, 1943

Dear Mr. Semmler:

This is the first I have written to you although I should have done so long ago. I am now in North Africa and have received two News-Bulletins since I have been here. Altho they meant a great deal to me in the States, they mean so much more now. I would also like to thank the Service Club for the nice birthday present they sent me just before I left the states.

I understand that there are several fellows from around Mokena in this locality but have not run across any of them yet. It would sure be nice to meet somebody from home. The Arabs here are selling small scrubby tomatoes for ten cents each and a few small onions for ten cents. The fellows seem glad to even get these at the price.

I will close for this time and shall try to write more often. Thank you again for sending me the News-Bulletin.

Sincerely yours,
Pvt. Sherwin C. Liess, 36369109, Btry. A, 410th C. A. Bn. (A. A.) A. P. O. No. 464, care of Postmaster, New York, New York.

A flag dedication and raising was held on the grounds of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bender Sunday. The flag was a surprise gift to Mr. Bender by his working associates in Chicago. A flag pole had previously been erected to accommodate the occasion. A barbecue picnic supper was served at the out-door fire place to the guests. A lovely afternoon and evening was enjoyed with games, etc.

Stanley Condor who is stationed at the Marine Base in San Diego, Cal. is spending his furlough here with his mother Mrs. Harvey Kellogg.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"God" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 4.

The Golden Text was, "The Lord is our judge, the Lord is our law-giver, the Lord is our king; he will save us" (Isaiah 33: 22).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Keep not thou silence, O God: hold not thy peace, and be not still, O God. That men may know that thou, whose name alone is JEHOVAH, art the most high over all the earth" (Psalms 83: 1, 18).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "That God is a corporeal being, nobody can truly affirm. The Bible represents Him as saying: 'Thou canst not see My face; for there shall no man see Me, and live.' Not materially but spiritually we know Him as divine Mind, as Life, Truth, and Love. We shall obey and adore in proportion as we apprehend the divine nature and love Him understandingly, waring no more over the corporeality, but rejoicing in the affluence of our God" (P. 140).

How electrical appliance dealers conserve vital materials

In devoting their time and skill to the adjusting and repairing of electric appliances, hundreds of electrical dealers throughout Northern Illinois are performing an important wartime service.

By extending the useful life of electric irons, washers, vacuum cleaners, toasters, coffeemakers and other time- and work-savers, these expert repairmen eliminate the necessity of manufacturing hundreds of thousands of new electric appliances. And the critical materials saved in this way are available for the production of tanks, ships and planes which are essential to victory on the land, on the sea and in the air.

Electricity has gone to war—don't waste it!

After determining cause of the trouble and completing necessary repairs, this serviceman reassembles the vacuum cleaner. Restoring life of this appliance means the saving of critical materials.

Radio Testing is explained to a new employee who is being trained for radio repair work. With radios working overtime the number of repairs has shown a marked increase.

The delicate mechanism of an electric clock is adjusted by this repairman. Often a simple adjustment is all that is necessary to put a clock back in good working condition.

The proof of the waffle iron is in the baking. So this repairman tests the operation of the repaired iron by actually baking a waffle. It looks like the iron is working perfectly.

Every day, electric irons, toasters, coffeemakers, waffle bakers, vacuum cleaners and other work-saving appliances are brought in to dealers for adjustment and repair.

Please limit your Long Distance
calls to matters that are really IMPORTANT

Right! WAR NEEDS THE WIRES NOW. Long Distance telephone lines are often crowded to capacity—and your "non-essential" call may delay some urgent message.

Your operator tries to put every call through, but she cannot know whether one call is more important than another. Please remember those things when you're planning to make a social call or any other personal call that you might well do without.

Decide now to make fewer Long Distance calls and keep all calls as brief as possible. Thank you.

"THE breaks of the game," were once the deciding factor in any close contest.

"The breaks of war," are even more important.

As far as the two big-league pennant races are concerned, the "breaks of war" have affected the New York Giants and the St. Louis Browns above all other teams.

Before arriving at this conclusion, we interviewed 11 managers from the two big leagues and their verdict was unanimous. First—the Giants. Second—the Browns. Third—the Red Sox.

These are the three teams that have contributed more of their strength to the armed forces, that have suffered more through the draft, than any three competitors.

Yankees, Cardinals and Dodgers have been nicked. But only slightly. They have lost several good men but few vital factors.

Sure, they've lost Joe DiMaggio, Terry Moore, Enos Slaughter, John Beazley and a few others.

But the Giants and the Browns are the teams that have taken the roughest beatings—by a margin of 3 to 1.

About the Giants

While the Cardinals, Yankees and Dodgers have only suffered slightly, consider the case of the Giants.

On offense they have lost Johnny Mize, Babe Young and Harry Danning, about 80 per cent of their punch—not overlooking Willard Marshall, a scoring hitter.

On the defensive side they have lost David Koso, Bob Carpenter and Hal Schumacker, three of their best pitchers.

If you add this up, you will find that the Giants have lost seven vital cogs in their machinery. The Browns have lost almost as much talent.

With the same war break the Yankees, Cardinals and Dodgers have drawn, Giants and Browns would now be neck and neck with the leader. The teams that have been luckiest in this respect are the Cardinals, number one—the Yankees, number two—the Dodgers, number three—and the Cubs, number four. They're "four-leaf clover" boys.

These four teams have had all the better of the war situation. They have suffered only minor casualties, comparatively. They should be far in front of the others at this spot.

I've talked with Horace Stoneham, Giant president, and Mel Ott, Giant manager.

Naturally, they have no squawks to offer. They know the pick of their flock has moved into war service. This also is true of the Browns. They know that with breaks similar to their own, the Cardinals, Yankees and Dodgers would be in trouble.

Suppose these three teams had lost 80 per cent of their playing strength, as the Giants and Browns have done.

About the Pirates

In looking over the parade, no one has turned out a better job than Frank Frisch of the Pirates.

Frisch had nothing like the material that belongs to the Cardinals, Yankees or Dodgers.

But the old Flash from Fordham has had his hired men hustling from the start.

He has been getting 100 per cent from all the man power he had left.

Frisch has been squeezing blood out of a turnip, and there is still the chance that he may crowd into second place. Just how anyone is going to beat out the Cardinals calls for a miracle. Billy Southworth, one of the best of all managers, still has the best of the ballplayers and this includes both leagues.

Sarazen's Picks

Gene Sarazen recently obliged by giving us his idea of an all-time golf ranking from the United States.

"Well," he said, "here she goes—1. Wooden-club play—driver, brassie and spoon—Bobby Jones.

2. Long-iron play—Byron Nelson, with Hogan close.

3. Short-iron player—on pitches to a green—Walter Hagen.

4. Best recoverer from trouble—Walter Hagen.

5. Best putter—Horton Smith with Jones (in his prime) close.

6. Hardest battler—Ben Hogan.

"There you are," Gene said, "and I've had to leave out some great golfers."

Among those he left out was a fellow named Sarazen, who on his inspired days, was a star with every club from driver to putter. There has certainly been no greater bunker player.

"From 1920 through 1930," Sarazen continued, "there was no one to match Bobby Jones' wooden-club play. He was long and straight. He was a fine brassie player and just as good with a spoon. He could pick his target a long way off and usually nail it. His smooth, almost slow, unhurried swing helped to give him almost perfect timing."

PEAKING OF SPORTS

by Bob McNamee

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Despite the many problems besetting all types of athletics, the National Football league looks with confidence to the 1943 season.

Pointing to the success of baseball as a pattern for the diamond game, Elmer Layden, league commissioner, is optimistic about the outlook:

"I think our members feel that now is the time to assert ourselves, to show that pro football is deserving of its high position in the sports world. Baseball surely had as many problems last year, if not more, than now confront us. I am sure the league will prove it can survive under trying conditions."

"We won't have talent comparable to that of last year and we can't think in these times of great unbeatable teams, but there will be no lessening of competition and games will be as hardfought and exciting as ever. Baseball and other sports have proved that competition is the big factor."

Commissioner Layden added that club owners always have recognized the value of competitive sports, and that the dollar sign wasn't the only guide in affairs of the National league. "Many of them (the clubs) have lost money in normal seasons. Some of them never have realized any profit, but they still continue."

New Franchises

The league, as of the present time, appears to be in a healthy state. It will operate this season with eight teams, and one more ready to go to work in 1944.

At a recent Chicago meeting, club magnates granted a franchise to Ted Collins, manager of radio star Kate Smith and an enthusiastic football fan. Arrangements are being made to set up an organization in Boston. The new team's games are to be played in Fenway park, home of the Red Sox.

At the same session, petitions were received for two more franchises—one from Don Ameche, film and radio star, and the other from Charles Murray, Buffalo, N. Y., promoter.

Sideline observers were somewhat confused when one franchise was granted and the other two were held up. However, the league decided to table until its December meeting the latter two applications in order that a study might be made of the problem, not the least of which is transportation.

Actually the league as it now stands has 11 franchises. Boston's becomes active in 1944. Cleveland's was made inactive for the duration at an earlier meeting this year and permission was given the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Philadelphia Eagles to merge for the season.

Round-Robin

The fact that only eight teams of the 11 will be operating makes it possible, for the first time in National league history, to play a round-robin tournament. Each team will meet every other team in its division on a home-and-home basis and meet each team in the other division once.

The Chicago Bears, Chicago Cardinals, Green Bay Packers and Detroit Lions compose the Western division, with the New York Giants, Brooklyn Dodgers, Washington Redskins, and the Pittsburgh-Philadelphia club grouped in the East.

A franchise will be nothing new for Boston. It was in the league until 1936 when George Preston Marshall, owner of the Washington Redskins, pulled out of that city in favor of the nation's capital. It was Marshall who made the motion that the league grant Collins a Boston franchise effective in 1944.

The Boston franchise becomes operative just prior to the December draft meeting, which will allow the new club to get in on the college player draft. The league, together with club officials, figured it would be smart policy to delay Boston's entrance for a few months to prevent many of the mistakes which might have resulted from hasty organization.

SPORTS SHORTS

Yankee batters use a tincture of benzoin to make their hands stick to their bats.

Both the Cardinals and the Browns give passes to Red Cross blood donors.

England's No. 1 racing stable owner of 1942 was King George VI, first reigning monarch to achieve that distinction. His horses won about $40,000.

Fritzie Zivic has announced that he will retire from the ring at the end of the year unless, as he says, "the current crop of bums gets worse."

All six recognized world marks in high hurdles are held by American athletes.

Lou Saban, Indiana's 1943 football captain and star shot putter, now is in the army.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Remember that stuffing expands when heated. Never pack it in too tightly. If it doesn't have room to expand, it will become soggy.

When buying oranges select those that are firm, heavy and not spongy or soft. Usually slight scars or russet spots on the skins will not affect the flavor or the quality of juice in the oranges.

Never let colored clothes lie in a clothes basket or with other clothes. Handle them separately, and hang them to dry as soon as possible after they have been laundered.

A half tablespoon or half teaspoon of any dry ingredient, or solid fat, is always measured as follows: Fill the spoon full. If it is a dry ingredient, level it off, then measure it lengthwise of the spoon into halves, scraping off the unused half. If a solid fat is being measured, first pack it down into the spoon, then level it off, and proceed as directed.

When you've cooked your hamburgers, quickly dip them into a shallow dish containing equal portions of mayonnaise, chili sauce and catsup. Pop them into split, buttered rolls and serve.

Wolves Threaten Food Supply, Shot From Sky

Wolves are threatening the war-time food supply of people living in the Arctic circle. In less than 10 years they have reduced reindeer herds in Alaska from 550,000 animals to 170,000.

According to Mr. J. Sidney Rood, director of the United States Reindeer service at Nome, Alaska, the only answer to the menace is the employment of government aeroplanes flying low enough to permit shooting of the wolves, after the fashion of the coyote hunters of the Montana-Idaho country.

One airplane, operating only in the pilot's spare time, accounted for 30 wolves last spring in a comparatively small area.

The TIRE of TOMORROW is here TODAY!

THE WORLD-FAMOUS FIRESTONE DeLuxe Champion TIRE IS NOW BEING MADE WITH Firestone Butaprene THE MARVELOUS New SYNTHETIC RUBBER

JUST as you'd expect, Firestone is FIRST to build the tire of tomorrow for the car owners of America. It is only natural that Firestone should be the leader in working out new processes, in creating new compounds and in building better tires from American-made rubber, for Firestone has always been the pioneer in developing new materials, new methods and new machines that have resulted in tremendous advancements in tire design, construction and performance.

From Firestone have come such revolutionary improvements as the FIRST straight side tire, the FIRST rubber non-skid tread, the FIRST commercial demountable rim, the FIRST patented Gum-Dipping Process, the FIRST balloon tire, the FIRST Safti-Lock Cord Body, the FIRST Super-Speed Construction and the FIRST practical pneumatic tractor tire.

In 1933, Firestone built the FIRST synthetic rubber airplane tires for our armed forces. In 1940, Firestone built its FIRST synthetic rubber passenger car tires at the New York World's Fair and began the manufacture of its own synthetic rubber, called Butaprene, the same type that was later adopted by the Government. In 1942, Firestone became the FIRST company to produce synthetic rubber in a Government-owned plant and later became the FIRST to make synthetic rubber using butadiene made from grain alcohol. And today Firestone is making synthetic rubber tires for passenger cars, trucks, buses, airplanes, tractors, farm implements and all types of war vehicles.

All of these years of experience, all of the knowledge that made these FIRSTS possible have been called upon in producing the new Firestone DeLuxe Champion Tire made with Firestone Butaprene. It is now ready for the car owners of America as released by the Government. But do not think that the crisis is past. America's greatest rubber supply is still on the wheels of its 27,000,000 cars. So you must continue all of the rubber conservation measures that have been so effective. However, if you are eligible and require new tires, remember this — in mileage, in strength and in safety the new Firestone DeLuxe Champion Tire upholds the Firestone tradition of "Best in Rubber — Synthetic or Natural."

Listen to the Voice of Firestone with Richard Crooks and the Firestone Symphony Orchestra, under direction of Alfred Wallenstein, Monday evenings, over N. B. C.

Hello Neighbor at Peotone Fair

The star studded rollicking radio revue, "Hello Neighbor" coming to the Will County Fair, Peotone, Ill., on Wednesday, September 1, for two afternoon and evening performances is rapidly being recognized as the 1943 hit show. It has been acclaimed the "Loudest Laugh Show" appearing at the fairs this season.

Headlined in the big cast is the very popular and versatile team, Lulu Belle and Scotty, who have been favorites with radio audiences ever since they came up from the mountaintops of North Carolina, about nine years ago, and were given a tryout performance on the WLS Barn Dance. They did not come together, however and neither knew the other until they met on this program. In less than a year they were married and they are now the parents of two adorable children.

Lulu Belle's rise to radio popularity was due to the home-like songs she sang, her wholesome comedy and her ability to be natural. She was "home-folks" personified, and she developed a native comedy sense of humor that has elevated her to a top position among radio comediennes. In fact, in October 1936, she was voted the "1936 radio queen" by readers of Radio Guide in a contest in which all famous feminine stars participated. She is a refreshing type, spontaneous in her witticisms and a wholesome, delightful person. Her real name, before her marriage, was Myrtle Cooper and she was given the name of Lulu Belle when she appeared on her first Barn Dance program.

Her "better-half", Scotty, was christened Scott Wiseman, and as a boy in the rural districts of North Carolina his hobby was playing guitar and harmonica for square dances. He attended Duke University one year following which he spent 3 years at Fairmont, W. Va. Teacher's College. At Fairmont, Scotty, entered radio on Station WMMN, earning most of his expenses singing mountain ballads and helping in program work. After graduation, he was the station's program director for several months until he joined the WLS staff in Chicago. His success was immediate. He is a handsome chap, with admirable restraint, which makes him an ideal foil for his irrepressible, unpredictable partner, Lulu Belle.
